PRESENTATION

The International Conference of Industrial Heritage 2013 is entitled “Maritime, River and Fishing Heritage”. Its objective is to present, reflect and discuss about a large agenda on maritime, river and fishing industrial heritage and the activities related with them, always from an interdisciplinary point of view: about identity, sustainability, technical and practices, history, architecture and town planning, transport, tourism, landscape and sustainability.

The history of many villages, towns and cities is linked to the sea and the rivers, and to many stories with a story that have left a valuable legacy and testimony: a tangible and intangible heritage. In this way, we find together aspects of an industrial heritage, the town and country planning, the human settlements, a strong identity and a belonging sense, as well as shows the transversal heritage of the activities related to the sea, from the traditional fishing to the new processes of technological innovation and inventions that have been an achievement in world history. At the same time, the transport development was paralleled with the expansion of the industry itself in a global market.

All these activities in the seas, rivers and lakes have caused some ways of seeing and understanding the life, whose uniqueness is evident in our daily lives. An intangible heritage that is very present in our lives and in the coastal cities and inland waters surroundings. In the same way, landscapes of sea and river are now strongly affected by sustainability and respect for the environment. In many cases there are malfunctions and controversies between the concept of protection of heritage and the memory of working with a defense of the environment in which resolution is necessary to have a sensitivity and historical knowledge to understand the importance of the artifacts, the historical naval elements, the mills, the dams, the cranes, the vapors, the companies files, the pictures and many other elements that make up an invaluable evidence the material development of the humanity.

All this, and with the ultimate goal of conservation, protection and enhancement of maritime, river and fishing heritage, will be discussed the XV International Conference promoted for INCUNA, declared a public utility company, from over fifteen years in Gijón, Asturias and today has become the only reference an annual international meeting for all specialists and interested in the heritage and industrial archeology in the world.

The themes of the interventions, workshops, workshops, posters, papers and communications in this year 2013 will focus on:

- The change of cities and villages. Historic port areas. Processing and preservation of industrial, cultural and natural heritage.
- Maritime transport. History, Construction and Technology.
- Port architecture, architectural and functional heritage.
- Heritage of fishing, canning industry. Techniques and knowledge

- Historic arsenals, Shipyards and wooden boats
- River and lake heritage. Mills, Waterwheels...
- Working Memory and technological and industrial heritage conservation.
- Tangible and intangible activities generated around the sea and rivers. Gastronomy, Music, Folklore, Film, Place Names, Popular Arts, Photography, Archives, Inventories.
- Maritime and River Heritage and its relationship to the landscape, the environment and sustainability.
- Museums, interpretation centers and temporary and permanent exhibitions.
- Underwater Archaeology
- Spas. Identity and Culture. People of sea
- Management of tourism and leisure. Creative and cultural industries

The 25th, 26th, and 27th of September, international, national and local communicators arrange to meet in a new way to show papers with participation of conference delegate and the audience. Papers, posters, round tables and workshops. On Saturday, the 28th of September, we will carry out a journey to Heritage spaces.

On Saturday, September 28, we will have an intense tour itinerary for various heritage sites, including a boat trip through the Eo Estuary.

In addition, on Thursday 27 we offer the possibility of a very special evening cocktail with a tour in the Aquarium of Gijón, surrounded by sharks, stingrays, moray leopard, giant tortoises...

The activities are completed with two alternatives for the morning of Sunday: a visit to the Railway Museum of Asturias, in Gijón, and/or Cider Route in the peri-urban area.

The data selected will be published in a book in the collection "The Eyes of Memory", in volume 14, continuing with this dynamic display of the contents of this conference that have become the only held every year in Europe in the treatment of industrial heritage and its cultural and scenic aspects.

We will have too complementary activities like documentary projections, photography exhibitions and posters presentations.

The papers selected for the conference will be edited in a book, in "The eyes of the memory" collection. Volume no. 14.
